

Hidden Trails teacher is 2017 Elementary Teacher of the Year

Susan Ramsey, a fifth-grade teacher at Hidden Trails Elementary School in Chino Hills, has been named the 2017 Elementary Teacher of the Year by the Associated Chino Teachers (ACT).

A teacher for 25 years, Ramsey “cares for all students and their families,” according to the ACT. “She is always developing professionally and seeks out trainings that will help her students in the classroom.”

She joined the Chino Valley Unified School District in September 1995 as a Resource Specialist Program (RSP) teacher at Newman Elementary School in Chino, working with students who qualify for special education services. She also taught second and third grades at Newman. In 2002, she moved to Glenmeade Elementary School in Chino Hills, where she taught first, third, and fifth grades. In 2013 to joined Hidden Trails’ staff, and has taught third, fourth, and fifth grades.

Ramsey retired from Chino Valley Unified School District this year.
