

Students portray Chino Valley Unified School District Board of Education members at the 2017 Student Government Day on Thursday (Feb. 9) at the District Office.

Students get a taste of local government at annual Student Government Day

We had a great time at the 37th annual Student Government Day on Thursday, Feb. 9!

Seniors from Ayala, Buena Vista, Boys Republic, Chino, Chino Hills, and Don Lugo high schools learned about local government at the Chino Valley Unified School District Office, and the Chino and Chino Hills city halls.

Afterwards, the students and the District administrators they shadowed discussed the experience at a luncheon at Chino High.

Thanks to all involved in creating the great day for students!

(See more photos below)

School Board President Sylvia Orozco and Superintendent Wayne M. Joseph speak to students about the role of Board members.

Lea Fellows (center), CVUSD Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources, gives students a tour of the Human Resources office.

Sandra Chen (second from left), Assistant Superintendent of Business Services, explains the role of the CVUSD payroll and benefits employees.

Assistant Superintendent of Facilities and Planning Greg Stachura (left), and Student Government Day participants look at a computer screen showing where school district buses are at any given time. Transportation department dispatcher Vance Stearns (seated behind the students) explains how the bus tracking works.

School Board member James Na speaks to students as they await the start of the mock School Board meeting.

Students portray the school board and superintendent during the mock meeting.

Chino Hills High student Tyler Stachura assumes the Assistant Superintendent of Facilities and Planning post, the job held by his father Greg Stachura.

A student speaks about one of the proposed actions on the mock school board meeting agenda.

Don Lugo High student Nylsen Escajeda and Buena Vista High student Eliza Hernandez portray board members.

The Chino High multi-purpose room is decorated in a patriotic theme for the Student Government Day Luncheon.

Those attending the Student Government Day Luncheon at Chino High are greeted with this sign, made by Chino High leadership students.

Pictured are some of the Chino High leadership students who helped decorate the school's multi-purpose room and assist visitors to the Student Government Day Luncheon.

The Chino High Choir, under the direction of Doug Bowden, sings the National Anthem at the beginning of the Student Government Day Luncheon at Chino High.

These American Bald Eagle topped centerpieces on the Student Government Day Luncheon tables were made by Chino High parent Sally Santoyo. She, Chino High Activities Director Jasmine Norman, and Chino High leadership students decorated the multi-purpose room for the event.

Chino Valley Unified School District caterer Vicki Gullotti prepared food for the luncheon, including these turkey sandwiches and salad.

Board President Sylvia Orozco addresses the crowd at the beginning of the luncheon. Student Board Representative Carlos Ruelas of Don Lugo High is emcee.

The Chino High multi-purpose room is packed with students, school site and school district administrators during the Student Government Day Luncheon.

A student talks about his Student Government Day experience.

Don Lugo High student Nyslen Escajeda talks about visiting the Chino Valley Unified School District Office and portraying a Board of Education member.

A student delights the audience with her recap of her day learning about local government.

A student talks about the importance of learning how local government works.