

Canyon Hills' color guard takes first place at WGASC Championships

Canyon Hills Junior High took first place in its division at the Winter Guard Association of Southern California (WGASC) Championships, held April 25 and 26 in the Huntington Beach area.

Canyon Hills beat out four other color guards in its division to take the top prize.

A color guard from Ayala High came in second in the prestigious Scholastic World division. Chino High came in third in the same division.

Ayala High's A color guard came in third in the SAAA division for smaller high school units.

Townsend Junior High took third in the Junior High AA division.

Also participating in the competition of color guards from throughout Southern California were color guard units Chino Hills High, Chino Hills #2, Chino High #2, Ramona Junior High, Magnolia Junior High Blue and Magnolia Junior High Red.
